Item 9. Regulation FD Disclosure.

On June 30, 2003, Travelocity.com LP ( Travelocity ), an indirect subsidiary of Sabre Holdings Corporation, issued the news release attached hereto as Exhibit 99.1 announcing the introduction of a new dynamic packaging engine that allows consumers to book airfare and hotels together simply, giving them access to special rates not available when booking components separately.

Travelocity's new dynamic packaging capability, named Travelocity TotalTrip™, is accessible through the re-designed Travelocity homepage under the heading "Book Together and Save" or at any "Get It Together" ad running on Travelocity. Travelocity TotalTrip gives Travelocity the real-time ability to create custom travel packages for travelers based on their individual preferences while increasing Travelocity's ability to promote high-margin merchant products. Several new features and functionality are included in Travelocity TotalTrip that are not found on any of the other competing travel Web sites.

Travelocity TotalTrip is expected to benefit Travelocity in the following ways:

Enhance Travelocity's ability to sell specially negotiated wholesale, or merchant, rates for airfare and hotels.

Increase visitors to the site and convert a greater percentage of those visitors to purchase travel on Travelocity.

Improvement in the yield per transaction by selling a greater percentage of merchant products.

Finally, Sabre Holdings Corporation will be looking to incorporate the benefits of Travelocity TotalTrip across other travel channels in which its business units participate.
