Cautionary Note Regarding Forward Looking Statements

This presentation may include "forward-looking statements." Statements that include words such as "anticipate," "expect," "should," "intend," "plan," "estimate," "forecast," "project," "target," "potential," "may," "could," "likely," "possibly," "approximately," or "about" of similar meaning in connection with future events or future operating or financial performance are often used to identify forward-looking statements. The statements included in this presentation, other than those relating to historical information or current conditions, are forward-looking statements. They are subject to a number of risks and uncertainties, many of which are beyond Martin Marietta's control, which could cause actual results to differ from those presented in the forward-looking statements. Risks and uncertainties relating to the proposed transaction with Vulcan include, but are not limited to: Vulcan's willingness to accept the terms of the proposal and enter into a definitive transaction agreement reasonably satisfactory to the parties; Martin Marietta's ability to obtain necessary regulatory and shareholder approvals on the proposed terms and schedule; uncertainty as to the actual premium that will be realized by Vulcan shareholders in the proposed transaction; uncertainty of the expected financial performance of the combined company following completion of the proposed transaction; uncertainty of the expected time to achieve the cost-savings and synergies contemplated by the proposed transaction within the expected time frame; Martin Marietta's ability to successfully integrate the businesses of Vulcan and Martin Marietta; a downgrade of the credit rating of Vulcan's indebtedness, which could increase the cost of Vulcan's existing indebtedness; the potential implications of alternative transaction structures with respect to Vulcan, Martin Marietta and the combined company, including potentially requiring an offer to repurchase certain of Martin Marietta's existing debt; the implications of the proposed transaction for Martin Marietta's and Vulcan's employee benefit plans; and disruption from the proposed transaction making it more difficult to maintain relationships with key customers, employees or suppliers. Additional risks and uncertainties include, but are not limited to: the performance of the United States economy; the inability of the U.S. Congress to pass a successor federal highway bill; the discontinuance of the federal gasoline tax or other federal revenue sources for highway construction; the level and timing of federal and state transportation funding, including federal stimulus projects; the ability of the combined company to secure approved projects either with tax revenues or alternative financing structures; levels of construction spending in the markets that the combined company serves; the decline in the commercial component of the nonresidential construction market, notably office and retail space; a slowdown in construction activity; unfavorable weather conditions, particularly Atlantic Ocean hurricane activity, the late start to spring or the early onset of winter; excessive rainfall in the markets served by Martin Marietta and Vulcan; the volatility of fuel costs, particularly diesel fuel, and the cost of repair and consumables, namely steel, explosives, tires and conveyor belts; continued increases in the cost of other repair and supply parts; barge availability on the Mississippi River system and the availability of railcars and locomotive power to move trains to supply construction materials to distribution markets; increased transportation costs, including increases from higher passed-through energy and other costs to the combined company, as well as higher volumes of rail and water shipments; availability and cost of construction equipment in the United States; weakness in demand for products by Martin Marietta's dolomitic lime products; inflation and its effect on both production and interest costs; Martin Marietta's ability to successfully merge and business combinations quickly and in a cost-effective manner and achieve anticipated profitability to maintain compliance with debt covenants; changes in tax laws, the interpretation of such laws and/or administrative practices that would increase Martin Marietta's effective tax rate; the impact of Martin Marietta's debt covenant if price and/or volumes return to previous levels of instability; a potential downgrade in the credit rating of the combined company's indebtedness; downward pressure on Martin Marietta's or Vulcan's common stock price and its impact on goodwill impairment charges; volatility in the price of the construction materials industry; the impact of future regulatory or legislative actions; the outcome of pending legal proceedings; the impact of long-term debt and interest expense incurred; changes in interest rates; volatility in pension plan asset values which may require cash contributions; the impact of environmental clean-up costs and liabilities relating to previously divested businesses; the ability to secure and protect intellectual property; the impact of cybersecurity risks; the impact of climate change; and the impact of environmental, social and governance factors.

located areas; exposure to residential construction markets; and the impact on the combined company (after giving effect to the impact of any of the foregoing risks, as well as other risk factors listed from time to time in Martin Marietta's and Vulcan's filings with the SEC. The foregoing review of important factors should not be construed as exhaustive and should be read in conjunction with the other information included elsewhere, including the Risk Factors section of the Registration Statement and our most recent reports on Form 10-K of Martin Marietta and Vulcan filed with the SEC. Any forward-looking statements made in this presentation are qualified in that they are only statements, and there can be no assurance that the actual results or developments anticipated by us will be realized or, even if realized, will have the expected consequences to, or effects on, us or our business or operations.
