A free translation from Portuguese into English of Special Review Report of Independent Auditors on quarterly information prepared in Brazilian currency in accordance with the accounting practices adopted in Brazil and specific standards established by IBRACON, CFC and CVM

SPECIAL REVIEW REPORT OF INDEPENDENT AUDITORS

The Board of Directors and Shareholders
Gol Linhas Aéreas Inteligentes S.A.

1. We have performed a special review of the Quarterly Information (ITR) (Company and consolidated) of Gol Linhas Aéreas Inteligentes S.A., for the quarter and nine months ended September 30, 2008, including the balance sheet, the related statement of income, statement of cash flows, comments on the Company's performance and other relevant information, prepared under the responsibility of management.
2. We conducted our review in accordance with the specific rules established by IBRACON – Brazilian Institute of Independent Auditors, coupled with the Federal Accounting Council, consisting mainly of: (a) inquiry and discussion with the managers in charge of the Company's accounting, financial and operating areas in relation to the main criteria adopted in the preparation of the Quarterly Information; and (b) review of information and subsequent events which have or may have relevant effects on the financial position and operations of the Company and its subsidiaries.
3. Based on our review, we are not aware of any material modification that should be made to the Quarterly Information (ITR) referred to in paragraph 1 for it to be in accordance with specific regulations established by the Brazilian Securities Commission (CVM), applicable to preparation of Quarterly Information, including CVM Ruling No. 469/08.

4. As mentioned in Note 2, Law No. 11638, approved on December 28, 2007 became effective on January 1, 2008. This Law amended, revoked and introduced new provisions to Law No. 6404/76 (Brazilian Corporation Law) and also changed accounting practices adopted in Brazil. Although the referred to Law is already effective, certain changes introduced by it depend on regulation by regulatory agencies to be applied by the companies. As such, in this transition phase, CVM, through CVM Ruling No. 469/08, allowed non-application of all the provisions of Law No. 11638/07 in preparing the Quarterly Information (ITR). As such, the accounting information contained in the Quarterly Information (ITR) for the quarter ended September 30, 2008, was prepared according to specific CVM rulings and does not consider all the changes in accounting practices introduced by Law No. 11638/07. As described in Note 2, the application of additional CVM regulations on adoption of Law No. 11638/07 did not generate significant impact on information related to prior periods, presented for purposes of comparison which, for this reason, has not been adjusted to include the changes in accounting practices introduced in 2008.

2. Basis of Preparation and Presentation of the Financial Statements

The Quarterly Information was prepared in compliance with the pronouncement Accounting Standards and Procedures (NPC) 27 Accounting Statements Presentation and Disclosures, from the Brazilian Independent Auditors Institute IBRACON, approved by the Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission CVM, the provisions contained in the Brazilian Corporation Law, the Plan of Accounts prepared by the National Agency of Civil Aviation - ANAC, the supplementary standards from CVM, the accounting practices in force adopted in the elaboration of the financial statements of the year ended December 31, 2007 on a consistent basis.

Because of the materiality that the accounting of derivative financial instruments has assumed, and to facilitate for the reader, the accounting practice adopted by the Company for accounting of derivative financial instruments, which does not differ from the accounting practice adopted in the preparation of the financial statements of the year ended at December 31, 2007, is transcribed below. Detailed information about the derivative financial instruments used, risks and existing positions, including additional information requested by the resolution no. 550 of the Brazilian Securities Commission - CVM, are presented in Note 22.

Derivative financial instruments

In order to protect part of the Company's exposure from the effects of exchange rates variation and from the increase in fuel prices and in interest rates, the Company uses oil, exchange and interest rate derivative financial instruments. Such instruments are mainly futures, options, collars and swaps.

As there is not a future market for aircraft fuel in Brazil, the Company uses international derivatives to manage its exposure to fuel price increases. There is a high correlation between international oil prices and aircraft fuel in Brazil, making oil derivatives effective in offsetting aircraft fuel price fluctuation and serving as a short-term protection against strong increases in average aircraft fuel price.

The Company measures the effectiveness of derivatives in relation to variations in the hedged asset prices. As most of the Company's fuel derivatives are not traded on stock exchanges, the Company estimates their fair value based on present value valuation methods by discounting future cash flows, or by option valuation models, which use assumptions on market prices of commodities. Furthermore, as there is not a reliable future market for aircraft fuel in Brazil, Management estimates aircraft fuel future prices based on international future curves to measure the effectiveness of derivatives to offset price fluctuations.

Aiming at recording, stating and disclosing transactions with derivative financial instruments carried out by the Company and its subsidiaries, based on their formal risk management policies, the Company and its subsidiaries measure the effectiveness of derivative financial instruments used for the specific purposes of covering market risk based on their fair value, and recognizing the non-effective portion of realized results of the transactions with derivative financial instruments directly in the financial result for the year, whereas the effective portion of results is recognized by adjusting revenues and expenses relating to the hedged items. According to hedge accounting standards, gains and losses from derivatives in effective hedging transactions are recorded in adjustments to asset valuation account, net of taxes, in shareholders' equity, and recognized in P&L on the date when the covered expenses are incurred.

The accounting policy for measuring the effectiveness of derivative instruments was defined based on the Company's risk management policy, which considers as effective the instruments which offset between 80% and 125% of the price change of the hedged item.

The market value of derivative financial instruments is calculated based on usual market practices, using closing amounts in the period and significant underlying price quotations, except for option contracts, whose values are determined by adopting pricing methodology (Black & Scholes), and the variables and information relating to volatility ratios are obtained by means of acknowledged market information providers.

Law No. 11638/07

On December 28, 2007, Law No. 11638/07 was published to introduce new provisions, amend and repeal provisions relating to the preparation of financial statements in Law No. 6404/76, from the year started on January 1, 2008, aiming at updating Brazilian Corporation Law to enable convergence of accounting practices adopted in Brazil with the practices defined by international accounting standards issued by the International Accounting Standards Board IASB .

On May 2, 2008, Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission (CVM) issued Ruling No. 469/08 on the application of Law No. 11638/07, which enables publicly-held companies to immediately apply all accounting provisions under the new law when preparing the Quarterly Information (ITR) for 2008 year or to add notes to ITR disclosing changes that may have impacts on the financial statements for the year closing of 2008, and estimating the possible effects on shareholders' equity and results for the period.

The Company decided to follow the partial application of Law No. 11638/07 in the presentation of Quarterly Information ITR, to the minimum extent required by CVM Ruling No. 469, of May 2, 2008.

The Company identified that, among the items whose partial or total application is mandatory from the first Quarterly Information of 2008 on, adjustments to present value could have impact on the Company's financial statements. The Company assessed situations in which there may be a difference on the date of initial recognition between par value and future cash flows value discounted by a market interest rate. The assessment resulted in the adjustment of certain non current accounts receivable arising from renegotiations with leasing companies, whose adjustments net of tax effects were not considered significant. For December 31, 2008, considering the assumption that no significant changes will occur in the business, the effects may be similar. The effects of the discount to present value of accounts receivable and payable on shareholders' equity and the statement of operations were not considered to be material, as such, they were not recorded. In the sales of tickets financed by customers, revenues were already recorded at the ticket value not including any charges resulting from installments elected by customers.

As mentioned in Note 21, the Company maintains a stock option plan granted to employees, and already discloses the same information in its financial statements prepared in accordance with the accounting practices adopted in Brazil. The accounting of stock options of shares has not yet been standardized by CVM. The Company estimates, that the results and shareholders' equity for the year ending December 31, 2008 will be reduced by approximately R$ 2,387 (R$ 3,702 in 2007) if recording of the compensation expenses by means of stock options exercise was required in 2008.

The Company believes that the other minimum requirements of CVM Ruling No. 469 have no effect on its financial statements since the Company's investments were not affected by the changed rule for valuation of investments in affiliates; it did not carry out transactions involving premiums received on issuing debentures, donations or investment grants and does not adopt revaluation of assets as an accounting practice.

Additionally to the minimum requirements of CVM Ruling No. 469, the Company estimated, based on a preliminary analysis, the other changes to be applied in the preparation of its financial statements for the year ending December 31, 2008, due to the Law No. 11638/07, considering the technical pronouncements and standards existing on the date of approval of the Quarterly Information for the quarter ended September 30, 2008, as well as international standards. The changes identified and described below might have a significant impact on the financial statements of the Company and its subsidiaries, which will be presented in comparison with 2007 amounts so that the two years be presented in compliance with the same accounting practices.

As mentioned in Note 19, the Company has operating leasing contracts, which will be eligible for being recorded as asset in depreciable property and equipment matched against the existing obligation in the estimated amount of R$ 1,294,425 (R$ 930,253 at December 31, 2007). The Company estimates that this change of accounting practice, when applied on a retrospective basis in the financial statements of the year ended December 31, 2007, could increase shareholders' equity by approximately R$ 26,000 and net income for the same year by approximately R$ 25,000, net of tax effects.

The Company also evaluated the definition of new criteria for classification and valuation of investments in financial instruments, including derivatives, and in credit rights and credit securities and did not identify material impacts considering that the Company had already been adopting accounting practices aligned with international standards for measuring and recording financial instruments, as described in the financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2007 and in the present Quarterly Information - ITR.

The following table gives a summary of best estimate of the effects of Law No. 11638/07 on consolidated shareholders' equity and consolidated net income for the periods ended September 30, 2008 and June 30, 2008.

The subsidiary VRG has a mileage program, whose based on the international standards, differs significantly from the accounting practices adopted in Brazil, requiring accounting of the obligations of this program based on the fair value of miles issued to customer of the program. In the preliminary evaluation by the Company, Law No. 11638/07 did not change the accounting practices adopted in Brazil related to this subject. However, as a result of convergence to international standards it is possible that in the near future new pronouncements will also come to change this accounting practice for purposes of preparing Company's statutory financial statements.

Effects of new pronouncements

On November 1, 2007, Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission - CVM approved the pronouncement CPC-01 Accounting for the Impairment of Assets that requires an analysis of the recoverability of property and equipment, intangible and deferred assets. The Company does not believe that the adoption the abovementioned pronouncement will have a significant effect on its financial statements.

On January 29, 2008, Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission - CVM approved the pronouncement CPC-02 from the Accounting Pronouncements Committee about the effects of changes in exchange rates and currency translation of financial statements that will come into effect on January 1, 2009. The CPC-02 determines how to include transactions in foreign currency and foreign operations in the Brazilian entity's financial statements, as well as how to translate the financial statements of foreign entities into the presentation currency of the financial statements in Brazil for purposes of recording equity pickup, full and proportional consolidation of the financial statements and also how to translate the Brazilian entity's financial statements into another currency. The CPC-02 introduces the concept of functional currency that was not previously observed by the accounting practices adopted in Brazil. According to the new concepts, the Company concluded that the functional currency of the parent company is the Real, same currency as that in which the Company maintains its accounting records and presents its financial statements. Regarding its overseas subsidiaries, the Company believes that, for not having an economic and administrative independence, they correspond to an extension of the Company's activities in Brazil, so that the functional currency will be the Brazilian Real. The Company is assessing the effects from applying CPC 02 on its financial statements including its retrospective application.

The Company is discussing in court the VAT (ICMS) levy on aircraft and engine imports under operating lease without purchase option in transactions carried out with lessors headquartered in foreign countries. The Company's Management understands that such transactions represent simple lease in view of the contractual obligation to return the asset subject matter of the contract, which will never be considered as Company's asset. Given that there is no circulation of goods, significant tax triggering event is not characterized. The estimated aggregate value of lawsuits filed is R$199,697 at September 30, 2008 (R$ 192,703 at June 30, 2008) monetarily adjusted and not including charges on arrears. Based on the assessment of the cases by its legal advisors and supported by case laws favorable to taxpayers from the High Court (STJ) and the Supreme Federal Court (STF) handed down in the second quarter of 2007, Management understands that it is unlikely for the Company to have losses on these lawsuits. The accounting practices adopted in the preparation of its financial statements, in line with international standards, do not require setting up of a provision for losses in these circumstances. Although the results of such proceedings cannot be estimated, the final judgment of those actions will not have a significant side effect on the Company's financial position, operating income and cash flow, according to Management's opinion supported by its outside legal advisors.

Quantity of options to be exercised at June 30, 2008	84,082	44.86

22. Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company is exposed to several market risks arising from its operations. Such risks involve mainly the effects of changes in fuel price and foreign exchange rate risk, since its revenues are generated in Reais and the Company has significant commitments in U.S. dollars, credit risks and interest rate risks. The Company uses derivative financial instruments to minimize those risks. The Company maintains a formal risk management policy under the management of its executive officers, its Risk Policy Committee and its Board of Directors.

The management of these risks is performed through control policies, establishing limits, as well as other monitoring techniques, mainly mathematical models adopted for the continuous monitoring of exposures. The exclusive investment funds in which the Company and its subsidiary GOL are shareholders are used as means for the risk coverage contracting according to the Company's risk management policies.

Airlines are exposed to aircraft fuel price change effects. Aircraft fuel consumption in the third quarter of 2008 and 2007 represented approximately 42.7% and 39.1%, respectively, of the Company's operating, selling and administrative expenses. To manage these risks, the Company, from time to time, uses future contracts, swaps and oil and oil-products options. The subject matter of fuel hedge is fuel operating expenses. As the aircraft fuel is not traded on a commodities exchange, the liquidity and alternatives for contracting hedge operations of that item are limited. However, the Company has found effective commodities to hedge aircraft fuel costs, mainly crude oil. Historically, oil prices have been highly related to aircraft fuel prices, which make oil derivatives effective in hedging oil price fluctuations, in order to provide short-term protection against sudden fuel price increases. Future contracts are listed on NYMEX, swaps are contracted with prime international banks and the options can be either those listed on NYMEX or those traded with prime international banks.

The Company's derivatives contracts, at September 30, 2008 and 2007, are summarized as follows (in thousands, except when indicated):

	09.30.2008	06.30.2008

The Company uses derivative financial instruments for short and long-term time frames and holds positions for future months. At September 30, 2008 the Company has a combination of purchased call options, collar structures, and swap agreements in place to hedge approximately 3.0% of its aircraft fuel requirements for the fourth quarter, at average oil equivalent price of approximately US$ 108.40 per barrel.

The Company classifies fuel hedge as cash flow hedge, and recognizes the changes in fair market value of effective hedges accounted for in shareholders' equity until the hedged fuel is consumed. The fuel hedge effectiveness is estimated based on correlation statistical methods or by the proportion of fuel purchase expense variations that are offset by the fair market value variation of derivatives. Effective hedge results are recorded as decrease or increase in the cost of acquisition of fuel, and the hedge results that are not effective are recognized as financial income/expenses. Ineffective hedges arise when the change in the value of derivatives is not between 80% and 125% of the hedged fuel value variation. When the aircraft fuel is consumed and the related derivative financial instrument is settled, the unrealized gains or losses recorded in shareholders' equity are recognized in the statement of income adjusting aircraft fuel expenses. The Company is exposed to the risk that periodic changes in the fair value of derivative instruments contracted will not be effective to offset fuel price variations, or that unrealized gains or losses of derivative instruments contracted will no longer qualify to remain under shareholders' equity. As derivative financial instruments become ineffective, the agreements are recognized in the statement of income for the period as financial income or expenses.

Ineffectiveness is inherent in hedging fuel with derivative instruments based on other oil related commodities, especially given the recent volatility in the prices of refined oil products. When the Company determines that specific hedges will not regain effectiveness in the time period remaining until settlement, any changes in fair value of the derivative instruments are recognized in the statement of income for the period in which the change occurs.

At September 30, 2008 there were unrealized fuel hedge losses of R$ (32,225) (R$18,115 at June 30, 2008) relating to the effective portion of the contracted hedges for future periods recorded in shareholders' equity.

Company's Management believes that the derivatives it uses are extremely correlated to the U.S. Dollar/Real foreign exchange rate variation, thus providing short-term protection against foreign exchange rate changes. The Company classifies hedge for exposure to U.S. Dollar variations as cash flow hedge and recognizes the fair market value variations of highly effective hedges in the same period in which the estimated expenses which are subject matter of the hedge occur. The market value changes of the highly effective hedges are recorded in Financial Income or Expenses until the period the hedged item is recognized in the statement of operations, when they are recognized as decrease or increase in incurred expenses. The market value changes of hedges that are not highly effective are recognized as financial income or expense. The U.S. Dollar hedge effectiveness is estimated by statistical correlation methods or by the proportion of expenses variation that are offset by the fair market value variation of the derivatives.

The fair market value of swaps is estimated by discounted cash flow method; the fair value of options is estimated by the Black-Scholes method adapted to the currency options; and futures fair value refers to the last due or receivable adjustment already accounted for and not settled yet.

c) Credit risk of financial derivative instruments

The derivative financial instruments used by the Company are conducted with top quality credit counterparts, AA+ or better rated international banks, according to Moody's and Fitch agencies or international futures exchange or the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F). The Company management believes that the risk of not receiving the owed amounts by its counterparties in the derivative operations is not significant.

d) Interest rate risk

The Company's results are affected by fluctuations in international interest rates due to the impact of such changes on expenses of operating lease agreements. At September 30, 2008, the Company contracted derivatives through swap-lock contracts to protect itself from interest rate oscillations of its aircraft leasing contracts. Market value changes are recognized in the period as financial income (expense) for instruments not considered as hedge, whereas for those that are considered hedge, the effective portions of the fair value are recorded in shareholders' equity until the date when the cash flow hedge generates result.

d) Interest rate risk (Continued)

In the third quarter of 2008, the Company maintains interest swap-lock derivatives to protect itself from oscillations of international interest rates. At September 30 2008, for financial instruments designed as cash flow hedges, the Company had contracts at the par value of R$ 115,959 (US$ 60,575) and recognized R$ 780 (US$ 407), net of taxes, relating to unrealized gains recorded in comprehensive income under the line of adjustment to asset valuation of in shareholders equity.

For interest rate derivatives not designated as hedges, at September 30 2008, the Company had contracts at the par value of R$ 240,245 (US$ 125,500) and recognized R$ 29 (US$ 15) of net gains resulting from market value fluctuations were recognized in financial income.

The Company's results are also affected by changes in the interest rates prevailing in Brazil, falling on financial investments, short-term investments, local currency liabilities, and assets and liabilities indexed to US dollars. Such variations affect the market value of derivative financial instruments contracted in Brazil, market value of prefixed bonds denominated in reais and the remuneration of cash and financial investments balance. The Company uses Interbank Deposit futures contracts of the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F) to protect itself against domestic interest rate impacts on the prefixed portion of its investments. At September 30, 2008, the par value of Interbank Deposit futures contracts with the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F) totaled R$ 1,500 (R$120,600 at September 30, 2007) with periods of up to 13 months, with a fair market value of R$ (2) (R$ (15) at September 30, 2007), corresponding to the last due or receivable adjustment, already determined and not yet settled. The total variations in market value, payments and receivables related to the DI futures are recognized as increase or decrease in financial income in the same period they occur.

e) Derivatives contracts used in cash management

The Company uses derivative financial instruments for cash management purposes. The Company enters into option contracts known as box operations with first-tier banks and registered with the CETIP (Clearing House for Private Sector Securities) with the objective of investing cash at fixed rates. At September 30, 2008, the total amount invested in box was R$ 4,093 with average term of 780 days. The Company uses swap contracts with first-tier banks to change the remuneration of part of its short-term investments to the Brazilian overnight deposit rate, the CDI. Investments in box combinations are swapped from fixed rates to a percentage of the CDI and investments in securities denominated in U.S. Dollar are swapped from U.S. Dollar based remuneration to Reais plus a percentage of CDI rate. At September 30, 2008, the par value of fixed-rate swaps to CDI was R$ 3,900 with a market value of R$ 89 and there were no foreign exchange swap transactions. The changes in fair value of the aforementioned swaps are reflected in the statement of operations in the period in which the change occurs.

2- Statement of sensitivity analysis (not reviewed):

The sensitivity analysis of derivative financial instruments, isolated from the fluctuation of the main risk factor for the likely scenario, and the possible adverse and remote scenarios considered the following:

The likely scenario is defined as the scenario expected by the Company's Management, established by the volatility of each asset.

The adverse scenario considers 25% possible deterioration in the main variable that can impact on the fair value of derivative instrument.

This remote adverse scenario considers 50% deterioration in the main variable that can impact on the fair value of derivative instrument.

The table below shows the Company's management sensitivity analysis and the cash effect arising from the Company's outstanding contracts at September 30, 2008 based on the scenarios above described:

Operation	Risk	Probable Scenario	Possible Scenario	Remote Scenario
Fuel	Decrease in barrel oil price	US$ 100 / barrel R$ 70	US$ 77 / barrel -	US$ 52 / barril -
Dollar	Decrease in the U.S. dollar price	R$ 1.90 / US$ R$ 6,501	R$ 1.43 / US$ R$ (36,946)	R$ 0.95 / US$ R$ (69,901)
Interest rate	Decrease in Libor rate	3.98% p. a. R$ (1,373)	2.99% p.a. R$ (16,472)	1.99% p.a. R$ (31,571)

The following considerations are important for understanding the sensitivity analysis of the Management:

D) Operations with fuel derivative instruments:

At September 30, 2008, the Company holds two call option oil contracts WTI type that represent a notional value of 102 thousand barrels with maturities until November, 2008.

The scenario considered by the Management is that the price of oil reaches an average of US$ 100 per barrel, which would provide a cash generation in the event of the settlement of the contracts; of R$ 70 recorded in accordance with accounting practices adopted by the Company in the same value by reducing the fuel cost if measured as effective. The Management estimates a possible scenario reduction of the oil price to US$ 77 per barrel and a remote scenario that the price could reach US$ 52 per barrel. If the possible or the remote scenarios occur, the Company will not account for losses in market value of derivatives for the scenario of decreasing oil prices, due to the fact that the Company only holds contracts of purchase options.

2- Statement of sensitivity analysis (not reviewed) (Continued):

II) Operations with U.S. Dollar derivative instruments:

The Company's risk management policy expressly prohibits the carrying out of speculative nature operations of derivatives instruments. The Company does not carry out operations with exotic derivative instruments or any other type of transaction with leverage.

At September 30, 2008, there are 1,475 future dollar contracts with notional value of R$ 141,180 and 9,275 call option dollar contracts with notional value of R$ 887,757. The maturity date of those contracts range from October, 2008 to January, 2010.

The likely scenario for the transactions of futures contracts with dollar is the expectation that the price of currency quotation reaches US$ 1.90 per U.S. dollar which will generate receipt of cash amounting to US$ 6,501, compensating for the payment of charges relating to dollar variation in case there was settlement of contracts at September 30, 2008. In a scenario considered possible, the estimated dollar rate would be $ 1.43 per U.S. dollar, causing losses and disbursement of cash in the amount of $ 36,946, while the remote scenario considers the devaluation of the currency to US$ 0.95 per U.S. dollar and losses and cash disbursement of R$ 69,901.

III) Operations with interest rate derivatives instruments

At September 30, 2008, the Company holds 11 interest rates swap-lock contracts with notional value of R$ 356,204 with maturities up to 14 years.

The Management estimates that the likely scenario is that the Libor rate is 3.98% p.a, whereas for the possible and remote scenarios the considered rates are 2.99% and 1.99% respectively. Gains or losses for likely, possible and remote scenarios are, respectively, US$ (1,373) US$ (16,472) and US$ (31,571).

At September 30, 2008 the insurance coverage, by nature, considering GOL's and VRG's aircraft fleet and in relation to the maximum indemnifiable amounts, is the following:

Aeronautic Type	R$ (000)	US$ (000)
