COHEN & STEERS REIT AND PREFERRED INCOME FUND, INC.

July 26, 2004

To Our Shareholders:

We are pleased to submit to you our report for the quarter and six months ended June 30, 2004. The net asset value at that date was $26.20 per common share. During the quarter, three monthly dividends were paid at the new dividend rate of $0.175 per share to common shareholders (up from $0.17 in prior monthly periods). In addition, during the quarter the fund announced its next three monthly dividends of $0.175 to be paid to common shareholders on July 30, 2004, August 31, 2004 and September 30, 2004.

INVESTMENT REVIEW

For the quarter, Cohen & Steers REIT and Preferred Income Fund had a total return, based on income and change in net asset value, of -7.9%. This compares with the NAREIT Equity REIT Index(a) total return of -5.8% and the Merrill Lynch Fixed Rate Preferred Index(a) total return of -5.4%. For the six months ended June 30, 2004, the fund's total return was 2.3%, compared to NAREIT's 5.5% and the Merrill Lynch Fixed Rate Preferred Index's -2.8%. As we have indicated in the past, the leverage that the fund employs tends to magnify the returns of the fund relative to the returns on the securities in which it invests.

In the second quarter of 2004, there was a major turn of events for global markets as strong U.S. employment reports finally made the economic recovery that equity markets began to discount well over a year ago clear and undeniable, even to the naysayers. With many tepid readings over prior quarters, the strength of job creation evidenced in these reports took the bond market by surprise, sending it reeling into its worst quarterly performance since 1994. After 13 Fed rate cuts since 2001, there was also a turn in the monetary policy cycle. On June 30, a widely expected hike in interest rates was announced by the Federal Reserve Board.

Both asset classes of the fund -- REITs and preferreds -- initially reacted quite negatively in April as bond yields gapped higher on the prospects of a heating economy, but both rebounded to end the quarter well off their lows. Weakness in preferreds, not surprisingly, largely mirrored that in the bond market. As we have mentioned in previous letters, we have been expecting higher rates and have positioned the fund's preferred portfolio defensively. Although still down a little more than 4% over the quarter on a total return basis, the fund's preferreds performed well relative to the broader preferred market largely because of this portfolio position.

Whereas preferred weakness was understandable to us, we characterized the decline in REITs early in the quarter as technical in nature and driven largely by the valuation concerns of some investors. The very jobs report that presaged the decline in REIT share prices, we believed, was likely to contribute to improving real estate fundamentals and improving cash flow for REITs. We believed the weakness presented an attractive investment

The index is designed to reflect the performance of all publicly traded equity REITs as a whole. opportunity, and in fact, after dropping 18% from their highs at the end of March to their lows on May 10, REITs then swung decisively higher to record a 14% total return through the end of June.

The strong REIT returns of the past two months -- making REITs among the best-performing asset classes over the period -- are certainly inconsistent with the notion put forward by some that REITs tipped into a bear market in the second quarter in sympathy with the bond market. In fact, if the first half of 2004 is a proper guide, REITs are on pace to deliver the low- to mid-teens total return profile that is consistent with the sector's long-term average.

While many observers have focused intently on the recent uncharacteristic volatility of REIT share prices, the more interesting story, in our view, is a rotation of sector leadership. The defensive issues, which had led the REIT group since 2001, have ceded their market leadership to the more cyclically inclined companies that will respond to the economic recovery most quickly and most dramatically. The broad distribution of returns across sectors during the quarter highlights in greater detail this leadership change, as well as the above-average volatility experienced during the quarter. The best performing sectors were apartment and hotel, which generated total returns of 2.2% and -2.6% respectively. Conversely, the worst performing sectors during the quarter were health care (-13.4% total return) and regional mall (-11.5%). The obvious difference between the two groups is the short lease duration and more variable demand patterns of the strong performing cyclical sectors versus the long lease terms and relatively consistent demand profiles of the laggards, which tend not to respond quickly to accelerating economic growth.

The best performing REIT investments during the quarter for the fund were in the apartment and industrial sectors, which produced total returns of 0.5% and -4.9% respectively, while the worst performing sector for the fund was the healthcare sector, which had a -15.3% total return. Apartment companies AMLI Residential Properties Trust and Mid-America Apartment Communities were the fund's best performing holdings, contributing total returns of 5.7% and 3.9% respectively. Laggards during the quarter included Health Care REIT, with a total return of -18.5% and Glimcher Realty Trust, which generated a total return of -16.6%.

The growing strength of the economy has had very different consequences for preferreds. As fixed income instruments, rising bond yields associated with a healthy economic expansion have pressured preferred prices. At the same time, economic improvement has resulted in a much improved credit environment and therefore enhanced the investment merits of many issues, including many securities held by the fund. As a result, credit spreads have narrowed significantly across most sectors in recent quarters. This spread tightening has stemmed rationally from much healthier earnings, stronger balance sheets and strong capital markets, all of which enhance credit quality. A high level of investor demand relative to new supply has also played a role in credit spread tightening and in good preferred performance.

With less room for credit spread performance to drive total return, and amid high interest rate volatility, standout performers over the quarter generally were more driven by structure than credit. Defensive issues generally performed best, as we would expect in a rising interest rate environment. These include high coupon issues, like the fund's 9.75% Astoria Financial holdings; callable securities with limited call protection, such as the fund's

COHEN & STEERS REIT AND PREFERRED INCOME FUND, INC.

Shaw Communications Inc. securities; and the fund's floating-rate preferred investments. By contrast, the non-callable, institutionally traded issues of Dominion Resources and Kinder Morgan were among the fund's larger laggards. We believe that structure and relative value considerations, rather than material credit issues, were responsible for the performance of lagging securities.

INVESTMENT OUTLOOK

In the wake of the REIT stock price decline in the second quarter, many investors have asked us whether REITs can continue to perform well in what many are concerned (overly so, in our view) may be a period of rising interest rates.

Our view continues to be that real estate fundamentals are the primary driver of REIT returns over the long run. Still, we regularly examine the extent to which REITs are correlated with other asset classes. We have found that REIT share price behavior has not been statistically related in any material way to the performance of bonds or interest rates over the long term. In other words, over time, the performance of the bond market has explained virtually none of the performance of REITs.

Over the short term, REITs may appear to correlate with interest rates, as we have seen recently. However, although we can say with certainty that rising rates result in poor returns for bonds, the REIT return equation cannot be solved using interest rates as the only explanatory variable. Importantly, we have also found that in the 12 months following periods of rising interest rates, as the dampening effect of higher interest rates on security returns has subsided and the acceleration of real estate fundamentals has kicked in, REIT performance historically has been consistently very strong.

Nonetheless, we cannot ignore the fact that interest rates can have an impact on REIT earnings and asset values. Higher interest rates will increase the cost of REITs' debt capital over time, although the impact will be mitigated by REITs' use of primarily long-term, fixed-rate debt. Higher interest rates may also result in higher real estate capitalization rates, which would tend to lower estimates of property values. However, we believe that if interest rates are rising due to a stronger economy and attendant higher inflationary expectations (which in the past have been favorable for real estate fundamentals), this could serve to offset at least some of the impact that higher interest rates would otherwise have on capitalization rates.

Our conclusion is that, although changes in interest rates have a varied impact on REITs, the positive and negative impacts have historically tended to offset one another, such that the overall impact on REIT returns has not generally been material, thus, the historical lack of correlation. What remains material is the supply and demand for real estate and how that impacts building occupancies and rents. The most important thing to recognize about the prospects for REIT returns, in our view, is that strong job growth is underway. With this key economic driver in place, we believe the prospects for higher building occupancies and rents, and thus for higher cash flows for REITs, are excellent.

Turning to preferreds, uncertainties associated with the pace of inflation and the Fed tightening cycle are likely to keep some pressure on prices in the near term. Nonetheless, several factors remain quite supportive of value. Most importantly, although inflation has risen somewhat, it remains low, and the Fed is certainly poised to keep it in check. As long as inflation remains subdued, long-term fixed income investments like preferreds are not likely to fall precipitously, and they can continue to present longer term value. What is more, the positive credit momentum that has been achieved in recent quarters continues to unfold with the expanding economy. We expect to see more credit improvements and ratings upgrades in the fund's preferred portfolio in coming months. In addition, whereas investor demand for income remains profound, new supply of higher income instruments, including preferreds, remains well below that of recent years.

There were also meaningful regulatory events over the quarter with positive implications for the preferred market. One such event was the much-anticipated release of a Federal Reserve proposal pertaining to the regulatory capital treatment of hybrid preferred issues. The fund owns quite a number of these instruments, notably the ubiquitous 'trust preferred' version. We are happy to report that the new Fed proposal resoundingly supports the continued extension of favorable regulatory capital treatment for outstanding and prospective issues. The strength of its wording has dispelled any uncertainty surrounding the long-term viability of these structures, which is favorable for market liquidity and pricing.

In another important regulatory event, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners has lowered the risk-based capital charges insurance companies take against preferred investments, making them much more appealing assets. We expect this to result in better demand for preferreds from this very meaningful investor base.

Although many factors continue to support preferred prices, the potential for interest rates to rise further has led us to seek more defensive structures, such as high coupon issues. Further, given our constructive view on REIT fundamentals, we intend to continue to manage the fund with a relatively lower exposure to preferreds than to REITs. The fund's mandate allows us to have up to 60% of its investments in either of these asset classes (but no less than 40% in each). We ended the quarter with approximately 56% of the fund assets in REITs, 43% in preferreds and bonds, and 1% in cash.

The fund continues to be well-positioned to deliver the current level of income consistent with its investment objectives. We are also quite pleased with the appreciation of the fund's net asset value over its first year in existence. While both asset classes of the fund were unusually volatile over the past quarter, we continue to believe that the fund's balance of REITs and preferreds will help to temper the cycle of each individual asset class and provide attractive long-term returns and diversification benefits for our shareholders.

OUR LEVERAGE STRATEGY (UNAUDITED)

While we do not attempt to predict what future interest rates will be, it has been our philosophy to utilize interest rate swap transactions to seek to reduce the interest rate risk inherent in our utilization of leverage. Our leverage strategy involves issuing auction market preferred shares (AMPS) to raise additional capital for the fund, with an objective of increasing the net income available for shareholders. As of June 30, 2004, AMPS represented 35% of the fund's managed net assets. Considering that AMPS have variable dividend rates, we seek to lock in the rate on a majority of this additional capital through interest rate swap agreements (where we effectively convert our variable rate obligation to a fixed rate obligation for the term of the swap agreements). Specifically, we have fixed the rate on 68% of our leverage at an average interest rate of 3.7%, for an average remaining period of 4.5 years (when we first entered into the swaps, the average term was 5.3 years). By locking in a large portion of our leveraging costs, we have endeavored to adequately protect the dividend-paying ability of the fund, which is one of the reasons the fund was recently able to increase its monthly dividend. The use of leverage increases the volatility of the fund's net asset value in both up and down markets. However, we believe that locking in a portion of the fund's leveraging costs for the term of the swap agreements partially protects the fund from any impact that an increase in short-term interest rates may have as a result of the use of leverage. The swap contracts also provide a modest NAV cushion, as they are assets of the fund that are marked-to-market daily and will rise in value in a rising rate environment.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS (UNAUDITED)

NOTE 1. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Cohen & Steers REIT and Preferred Income Fund, Inc. (the fund) was incorporated under the laws of the State of Maryland on March 25, 2003 and is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, as a closed-end, nondiversified management investment company. The fund had no operations until June 6, 2003 when it sold 4,200 shares of common stock for $100,275 to Cohen & Steers Capital Management, Inc. (the investment manager). Investment operations commenced on June 27, 2003.

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies consistently followed by the fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The policies are in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. The preparation of the financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of income and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Portfolio Valuation: Investments in securities that are listed on the New York Stock Exchange are valued, except as indicated below, at the last sale price reflected at the close of the New York Stock Exchange on the business day as of which such value is being determined. If there has been no sale on such day, the securities are valued at the mean of the closing bid and asked prices for the day. If no bid or asked prices are quoted on such day, then the security is valued by such method as the board of directors shall determine in good faith to reflect its fair market value.

Securities not listed on the New York Stock Exchange but listed on other domestic or foreign securities exchanges or admitted to trading on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations, Inc. (Nasdaq) national market system are valued in a similar manner. Securities traded on more than one securities exchange are valued at the last sale price on the business day as of which such value is being determined as reflected on the tape at the close of the exchange representing the principal market for such securities.

Readily marketable securities traded in the over-the-counter market, including listed securities whose primary market is believed by the investment manager to be over-the-counter, but excluding securities admitted to trading on the Nasdaq national list, are valued at the official closing prices as reported by Nasdaq, the National Quotations Bureau or such other comparable sources as the board of directors deems appropriate to reflect their fair market value. However, certain fixed-income securities may be valued on the basis of prices provided by a pricing service when such prices are believed by the board of directors to reflect the fair market value of such securities. Where securities are traded on more than one exchange and also over-the-counter, the securities will generally be valued using the quotations the board of directors believes reflect most closely the value of such securities. Unrealized gains and losses from securities that result from changes in foreign exchange rates, as well as changes in market prices of securities, are included in unrealized appreciation/(depreciation) on investments.

Short-term debt securities, which have a maturity of 60 days or less, are valued at amortized cost which approximates value.

Security Transactions and Investment Income: Security transactions are recorded on trade date. Realized gains and losses on investments sold are recorded on the basis of identified cost. Interest income is recorded on the accrual basis. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date. The fund records distributions received in excess of income from underlying investments as a reduction of cost of investments and/or realized gain. Such amounts are based on estimates if actual amounts are not available, and actual amounts of income, realized gain and return of capital may differ from the estimated amounts. The fund adjusts the estimated amounts of the components of distributions (and consequently its net investment income) as an increase to unrealized appreciation/(depreciation) on investments as necessary once the issuers provide information about the actual composition of the distributions. This adjustment has no impact on the net assets of the fund.

Interest Rate Swaps: The fund uses interest rate swaps in connection with the sale of taxable auction market preferred shares. The interest rate swaps are intended to reduce or eliminate the risk that an increase in short-term interest rates could have on the performance of the fund's common shares as a result of the floating rate nature of leverage. In an interest rate swap, the fund agrees to pay the other party to the interest rate swap (which is known as the counterparty) a fixed rate payment in exchange for the counterparty agreeing to pay the fund a variable rate payment that is intended to approximate the fund's variable rate payment obligation on the taxable auction market preferred shares. The payment obligation is based on the notional amount of the swap. Depending on the state of interest rates in general, the use of interest rate swaps could enhance or harm the overall performance of the common shares. The market value of interest rate swaps is based on pricing models that consider the time value of money, volatility, the current market and contractual prices of the underlying financial instrument. Unrealized gains are reported as an asset and unrealized losses are reported as a liability on the Statement of Assets and Liabilities. The change in value of swaps, including the periodic amounts of interest to be paid or received on swaps is reported as unrealized gains or losses in the Statement of Operations. A realized gain or loss is recorded upon payment or receipt of a periodic payment or termination of swap agreements. Swap agreements involve, to varying degrees, elements of market and counterparty risk, and exposure to loss in excess of the related amounts reflected in the Statement of Assets and Liabilities.

Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders: Dividends from net investment income are declared and paid to common shareholders monthly. Dividends to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date. A portion of the fund's distributions may consist of amounts derived from nontaxable components of the dividends from the fund's portfolio investments. Net realized capital gains, unless offset by any available capital loss carryforward, are distributed to shareholders annually.

Dividends from net investment income and capital gain distributions are determined in accordance with U.S. federal income tax regulations which may differ from generally accepted accounting principles.

pay dividends based on a variable interest rate set at auctions, normally held every seven days. Dividends for Series M7, Series T7, Series W7, Series TH7, and Series F7 preferred shares are accrued for the subsequent seven day period on the auction date. In most instances, dividends are payable every seven days, on the first business day following the end of the dividend period.

Series T28, Series W28A, Series W28B, and Series W28C preferred shares pay dividends based on a variable interest rate set at auctions, normally held every 28 days. Dividends for Series T28, Series W28A, Series W28B, and Series W28C preferred shares are accrued for the subsequent 28 day period on the auction date. In most instances, dividends are payable every 28 days, on the first business day following the end of the dividend period.

Federal Income Taxes: It is the policy of the fund to qualify as a regulated investment company, if such qualification is in the best interest of the shareholders, by complying with the requirements of Subchapter M of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies, and by distributing substantially all of its taxable earnings to its shareholders. Accordingly, no provision for federal income or excise tax is necessary.

NOTE 2. INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT FEES, ADMINISTRATION FEES AND OTHER TRANSACTIONS WITH AFFILIATES

Investment Management Fees: Cohen & Steers Capital Management, Inc. (the investment manager) serves as the investment manager to the fund, pursuant to an investment management agreement (the management agreement). The investment manager furnishes a continuous investment program for the fund's portfolio, makes the day-to-day investment decisions for the fund and generally manages the fund's investments in accordance with the stated policies of the fund, subject to the general supervision of the board of directors of the fund. The investment manager also performs certain administrative services for the fund.

For the services under the management agreement, the fund pays the investment manager a monthly management fee, computed daily and payable monthly at an annual rate of 0.65% of the fund's average daily managed asset value. Managed asset value is the net asset value of the common shares plus the liquidation preference of the preferred shares. For the six months ended June 30, 2004, the fund incurred investment management fees of $6,317,281.

Administration Fees: Pursuant to an administration agreement, the investment manager also performs certain administrative and accounting functions for the fund and receives a fee equal to, on an annual basis, 0.06% of the fund's average daily managed assets up to $1 billion, 0.04% of the fund's average daily managed assets in excess of $1 billion up to $1.5 billion and 0.02% of the fund's average daily managed assets in excess of $1.5 billion. For the six months ended June 30, 2004, the fund incurred $443,012 in administration fees.

Director's Fees: Certain directors and officers of the fund are also directors, officers and/or employees of the investment manager. None of the directors and officers so affiliated received compensation for their services. For the six months ended June 30, 2004, fees and related expenses accrued for nonaffiliated directors totaled $21,874.
