CALC Reports Final Court Ruling:
No Substantive Changes from Court's November 2002 Tentative Ruling
Commission's November 2000 Actions are of No Force or Effect

CALC Will Continue to Seek Reasonable Development
Without any Burden From Past Commission Findings

IRVINE, California, February 18, 2003 California Coastal Communities, Inc. (NASDAQ: CALC) reported today that it has just received the San Diego Superior Court's final ruling, dated February 14, 2003, which declares that the California Coastal Commission's November 2000 actions are no longer of any force or effect; therefore the Company's writ of mandate petition which challenged those actions was denied. The court's ruling also states that there is not sufficient evidence to invoke the futility doctrine, making the Company's inverse condemnation claim premature at this time.

The Court's ruling is based upon the fact that the Commission's decision of November 2000 which, among other things, proposed that development of the Bolsa Chica Mesa be limited to the upper bench and that the lower bench be designated as a conservation area expired when the County of Orange expressly rejected the Commission's suggestions in May 2001.

Ray Pacini, CEO of the Company, stated: "The important thing to remember is that the judge's final ruling clearly states that we can start fresh. The judge has ruled that the Commission's decision of November 2000 is of no force or effect and there is no Coastal Commission determination that the lower bench may not be developed."

"The ultimate goal of our litigation against the Commission was to achieve a clean slate for us to pursue reasonable development of our property. This result achieved that goal, even though the court has denied our petition and rendered our takings case premature," he said.

The Company currently has a permit application pending at the Commission for 379 homes on the upper bench, which was approved by the County of Orange last year.

The Company is a residential land development and homebuilding company operating in Southern California. The Company's principal subsidiaries are Signal Landmark and Hearthsides Homes, Inc. Signal Landmark owns 208 acres on the Bolsa Chica Mesa, which overlooks the Pacific Ocean and the Bolsa Chica wetlands in Orange County, CA, along with an additional 100 acres at Bolsa Chica. Hearthsides Homes, Inc. is currently building 86 homes in the Chapman Heights master-planned golf-course community in Yucaipa, CA 176 homes in the Providence Ranch community in Riverside County, CA, and 84 homes in the Victoria Grove community of Riverside County.
