ALLISON:

00:00:03;10 AT&T and Time Warner, the parent company of CNN, have agreed to an $85 billion megamerger. The move was announced Saturday evening, it will be subject to a review by regulatory approval, which could take more than a year to complete. This deal helps AT&T expand beyond wireless and internet service and move into content.

00:00:23;03 Time Warner is also the parent company of TNT, HBO, Warner Brothers Studio, and more. So for more on this blockbuster deal, let's turn to CNN chief business correspondent and Early Start anchor, Christine Romans (PH), who is joined by the heads of both companies. Hey, Christine.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:38;07 Hi. It's literally a big deal, Allison (PH). (LAUGH) Thank you. Joining me right now, Jeff Bewkes (PH), the chairman and CEO of Time Warner, and Randall Stephenson (PH), the chairman and CEO of AT&T. Gentlemen, thank you

00:00:48;18

(OVERTALK)

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:48;17 Congratulations.

MALE VOICE:

00:00:49;06 Mornin'. Thank you.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:50;03 Let's talk, Randall, why buy Time Warner?

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:00:54;27 It seems to us like a very natural extension of what we do. We're in a in an environment where our customers are demanding more and more video, more and more entertainment content, not only on the TV but on the mobile device. And we have a really large customer base in in mobility. And the ability to take really premium-quality content to our customers in the mobile environment is huge for us.

00:01:18;19 It's huge for our customers, and as we made the scan and looked for premium content to bring to our customers, this is the premium content we think on the planet right now, and so the ability to do something special like this with Time Warner is just a very natural extension for us.

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:02:18;18 Oh, I think you're gonna see the pace of innovation, in terms of delivering meaningful premium content to the customer on mobile devices. That pace of innovation is what's going to change. And we all are trying to innovate in this way.

00:02:32;12 And our experience is when you're trying to do meaningful innovation and bring new product and capability to market, doing it in arm's length contracts is always really, really hard. And so you put these two companies together, and now the two companies are working together to change how the customer experiences entertainment, how the customer experiences CNN.

00:02:52;18 Literally, it's that's what we think will change. The customer's demanding not only the entertainment, and not only the content, but the ability to integrate social, doing clipping and posting and then social interaction with their content. So, these are the kind of things we really want to move fast

00:03:06;29

(OVERTALK)

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:03:07;02 Talk to me more about how you see the future audience consuming this stuff? You know, you've got this young millennial who'd in many cases, they don't wanna ever have a cable package, right? They're viewing this content differently. How does this deal see that or feed that?

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:03:22;24 So, the millennials and people in fact, the our customer base in general is not consuming less content. Our our our customers are consuming more premium content today than they've ever consumed. But they're consuming it in different places.

00:03:36;27 They're not consuming it just on the television in their living room. They're consuming it now on their tablet. They're consuming it on the mobile device, on the go, and they're consuming it everywhere. And it is really stark, if you look at the the amount of volumes, how they're increasing traffic going to these mobile devices

00:03:51;28

(OVERTALK)

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:03:52;21 that's video-driven. And so we're we see that continuing, but we see that if we can actually innovate and and curate the content differently and bring to the customer differently, we actually think this doesn't slow down. This accelerates. And this is the the really important thing here, because we're really excited about as this accelerates, as this demand for premium content on these mobile devices continues to grow, it gives us more and more incentive to invest more and more

00:04:20;07 Right CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:04:20;13 in infrastructure RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:04:21;19 (OVERTALK)

00:04:21;11 and innovatin infrastructure; this idea of 5G technology. RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:04:24;20 What is that? CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:04:25;26 It s the next generation of mobile technology. So think about the fastest internet speed you get from the cable company is a gig, right? RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:04:33;29 Right CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:04:34;08 that we you can buy a gig of speed. 5G will allow us to provide a gig of speed to you wirelessly. And as we innovate this kind of content, having a one-gig wireless network so our customers now can can stream any kind of content, any kind of video anywhere, ultimately we think we ll be competing head-to-head with the cable companies with a wireless offer. We can hit those kind of price points, combine it with this kind of content. We think this is exciting. RANDALL STEPHENSON:

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:04:59;06            You know (?), we're talking about that that cable-free customer, the customer who wants to be cable-free. And Time Warner well, you and I have talked about some of the things that Time Warner has already been doing

JEFF BEWKES:

00:05:07;02            Uh-huh (AFFIRM)

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:05:06;29            to sort of see this FilmStruck (PH), for example, you know?

JEFF BEWKES:

00:05:09;26            Yeah

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:05:10;01            Talk to me a little bit about how this deal how this deal fits into that?

JEFF BEWKES:

00:05:17;04            Well, we've had a progression for years. We wanted to have more video on demand. That was launched at HBO about 15 years ago. And then progressively we've seen Broadband delivery give us more VOD service. Think of Netflix, think of Hulu, think of Amazon. And we added FilmStruck, which is for film buffs.

00:05:35;27 We've got HBO Now available, so you can subscribe to that without adding anything else. You can do it a number of ways. And I think what we're gonna see is with this kind of a platform, and you know, we believe this'll be essentially a catalyst to more competition, more innovation, and what we'd like to see is all the distributor companies basically doing more choices, more experiments. And we think this will, if consumers like the kind of packages, and more competition leads to more (UNINTEL) it leads to lower prices, it leads to happier consumers, and it tells us where to go.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:06:13;22 So eight weeks ago, you first met in this building to discuss to start kind of talking about this that's pretty quick for such a big merger. Tell me a little bit about the timing here, because we are in the midst of what I think the most populist presidential election in modern history, where you know, big is bad. And I'm wondering if, if that timing played had any effect on you guys?

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:06:34;27 No, it had no

JEFF BEWKES:

00:06:35;26 No

00:06:36;03 effect on it. I RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:06:36;29 (OVERTALK)

00:06:37;20 I came to see Jeff, because our our businesses obviously RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:06:41;08 Right CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:06:41;21 do a lotta lot together, and and we buy a lot of Time Warner content. And so we see each other regularly. We get together regularly. And came by to see Jeff. We had lunch. And as we began to talk, me about where I saw the world if distribution going, 5G that we ve spoken of here this morning, and and where he saw the the world of content and premium content moving and and we just (LAUGHTER) really came to an agreement that these things are converging. And they re gonna confer converge very, very quickly

00:07:10;19 Just think how I mean, a movie studio and a phone company. I mean, you think about how quickly things have really changed, in terms of both of your both of your businesses. I m wondering about the regulatory scrutiny. I mean, you look at the front page of the papers today, and you know, immediate opposition is almost in every single headline or first paragraph. CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:07:27:00 We've heard folks on the campaign trail talking about Hillary Clinton, has said that she will you know, her her spokesman said that they will, you know, give it scrutiny if if she is President. Donald Trump says it shouldn't be allowed to happen. Are and there will be hearings in Congress, no question. Are you worried about the regulatory scrutiny at all?

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:07:41:21 Well, obviously we're very attentive to it. We've (LAUGH) we've announced a lot of big deals, and this this is not too much different than what we've seen in the past. This deal is unique though, from any deal that we've ever done of any size. And in fact, it's it's unique in this regard; this is a true vertical integration of two companies.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:07:59:02 Explain what that means. It means it it means it's not as if

MALE VOICE:

00:08:01:07 Yeah

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:08:01:08 two companies do the same thing already?

00:09:28;20 and over-the-top video. And I think (LAUGH) if you look at this transaction six years after that, the net neutrality debate; I think it's over. I think

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:09:36;04 Yeah

JEFF BEWKES:

00:09:36;07 the the the case was settled by the circuit court. And I think net neutrality is behind us. Over-the-top, I think Netflix is somehow gonna make it. (LAUGHTER) I think they're gonna pull through. I think they're gonna make it, right?

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:09:47;21 Let me ask you about CNN and its independence here because CNN is just one of the many, many name brands that are in the Time Warner stable. But you have said that AT&T will not be reaching to

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:00;05 stories.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:
You have said that AT&T will not be reaching into how CNN does its business or tells its 00:00:06;07                    I I watch how Jeff manages this business today. And I I think it s a model for how we want to manage it in the future. And, look, I I think of a brand like CNN. And the key variable of your brand is your independence. And when people watch CNN, are they getting an independent assessment and reporting of the news? The last thing we want to do as AT&T is in any way taint that in the slightest bit.

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:00:30;14                    And you re sure they they understand the separation of of of

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:33;25                    Yeah.

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:00:33;28                    all that? (THROAT CLEARING)

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:35;03                    You know, s you ve been at CNN for many years. And it s been owned by Time Warner. Has it been interfered with? I think no.

JEFF BEWKES:

00:00:42;05                    No.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

JEFF BEWKES:

00:00:42;17 And why? There are two things. People watch news channels if they trust them to be independent, honest, and objective. That's always the challenge. And when you're looking for the best journalists in the world, you would only work at a news channel that lived up to that standard.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:00:59;28 What changes for the Time Warner brand? You stay on for how long?

JEFF BEWKES:

00:01:04;19 Well, at least a few years after the close we'll we'll all we'll all do it as long as we're useful for the new company.

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:01:11;21 This is great

JEFF BEWKES:

00:01:11;28 And

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:01:12;02 It's the first time I've heard him say a few years. (LAUGH) This is a really big moment.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:01:15;03 And you have the tape. You can always (LAUGH) reroll the tape.

JEFF BEWKES:

00:01:17;02 Yeah. Well, we've got a year to get to the to the get to the close. And then we need some period of time. But we have some tremendous executives in both of our companies

00:01:59;10 I mean, this is a well-run company. In fact, I said at the very beginning I think this is the p premium content brand company in the world. So I don t envision us changing a lot with it. What we do want to figure out and this will be the management art that we have to figure out.

00:02:13;08 And that is how do we begin to think differently about curating this content and and formatting this content in new ways where we can get it to our customers in different ways, in different formats. And and getting that seamlessly working across two companies, that will be the management art we have to figure out.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:02:28;13 So tell me again. I mean what we re talking about here is how what what content s gonna look like in five years and how together you guys can can harness it and get it to people. But for consumers, you know, they want to know what s gonna change for them. Their their bills? You know their phone bills? Their their cable bills? What is the biggest thing that they ll notice differently you think?

JEFF BEWKES:

00:02:47;23 They're gonna have more choices of different channel packages. If they want a big package of a lot of channels on their big screen TVs, and they can watch the show, and walk out the house with a tablet, and have seamless connection. Or maybe they don't want that. Maybe they've got it's a young couple that wants to use mobile devices to watch. Maybe they don't want the full package of channels. There'll be more choice. I think better prices for consumers. There'll be

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:03:13;08 You think better prices for consumers?

JEFF BEWKES:

00:03:14;11 Yes. More competition usually leads to more price reduction.

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:03:20;25 I'll give you a classic example of this. You'll see this actually next month. And that is one thing we've been working on since we closed on the DirecTV acquisition is a purely over-the-top content package. It's we're calling it DirecTV Now. This is a mobile-centric, purely over-the-top package that's going to our consumers.

00:03:40;18 This is going to be a radically lower price point than what the consumer's expecting or has has typically paid. And it's gonna be 100-plus channels. We're not talking channels that nobody watches. This is 100 plus premium channels. All of this content

00:03:52;29

(OVERTALK)

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:03:53;09 will be on there. ESPN. The Disney content. This is a very, very different experience. Mobile centric is designed for the tablet and the smartphone. Now, think about having an anchor tenant like Time Warner, whose content is in here, and HBO, and that content and how you can begin to integrate social into this.

00:04:11;05 And social interaction. And and can we clip the content, and send it to friends, and and interact with our friends on this? These are the kind of things that we think are gonna iterate much, much faster and change how the customer experiences content.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:04:23;09 Jeff, let me ask you about your legacy at this company. I mean you've I mean, you've been what what are your thoughts I guess?

JEFF BEWKES:

00:04:30;26 Well, I think it's our company. It's it's

00:04:32;11

(OVERTALK)

JEFF BEWKES:

00:04:32;24 You're in it, too. Look, this company invented the magazine. It invented satellite-delivered non-ad-supported TV at HBO. It invented 24-hour news at CNN. And so we're very proud of the mission of informing people, of telling authentic stories. And this will help us to do even more investment, even more variety, and keep evolving the distribution system.

00:05:00;24 That's what this is about, is making sure that the breakthrough content that we're seeing an explosion, not just in (NOISE) our company but in all the television companies. We need to get this out across the world in a way that harnesses the 21st century of mobile devices, broadband delivery, VOD. There's so much programming. You need a good interface (LAUGH) to figure out what is what do I wanna watch. And that's what this'll help.

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:05:24;15 And more hours of the day to watch it frankly

JEFF BEWKES:

00:05:25;20 Yeah.

RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:05:26;01 That's (LAUGH) right. Yeah

CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:05:26;13 Jeff Bewkes, Randall Stephenson, thank you gentlemen so much.

00:05:28;10 Thank you so much RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:05:28;17 (OVERTALK)

00:05:28;28 Christine. RANDALL STEPHENSON:

00:05:29;20 Chris? CHRISTINE ROMANS:

00:05:30;18 All right. Great interview, Christine. Thank you very much. So what needs to happen for this AT&T-Time Warner deal to come to fruition? And what's the (MUSIC) plus-minus for you? Up next, our media experts will take you through the deal. Next. CHRIS CUOMO:
