PART III - NARRATIVE

State below in reasonable detail the reasons why Forms 10-K, 20-F, 11-K, 10-Q, N-SAR, N-CSR, or the transition report or portion thereof, could not be filed within the prescribed time period.

As previously announced by Celgene Corporation (the "Company") in its press release dated January 27, 2005, which has been filed as Exhibit 99.1 to the Company's Current Report on Form 8-K filed on January 27, 2005, the Company has been reviewing its accounting treatment for certain warrants to purchase common stock received by the Company from EntreMed, Inc. ("EntreMed") in connection with several agreements entered into with EntreMed on December 31, 2002 relating to, among other things, the termination of patent litigation between the two companies. Based on the Company's analysis at that time--an analysis as to which the Company at the time had disclosed to its independent auditors all the relevant facts and as to which the independent auditors had concurred--the Company expensed the entire amount paid to EntreMed in connection with those agreements, including its equity investment and the warrants, through its statement of operations (income statement) as of December 31, 2002. The Company previously accounted for the warrants acquired in the transaction using the equity method of accounting under APB 18 and has now concluded that it will account for the warrants as derivatives under SFAS No. 133. In addition, at the time of the transaction with EntreMed in December, 2002, the Company fully reserved its equity investment in the EntreMed preferred stock that it acquired in such transaction as an other than temporary impairment. This accounting treatment, for which the Company at the time had also disclosed to its independent auditors all the relevant facts, had also been concurred in by such independent auditors at the time. The Company has now concluded that it will reverse the reserve taken at that time and record its equity in the net losses of EntreMed as reported in each quarter of 2003 until such time as its equity investment is zero (Third Quarter, 2003). To reflect these accounting changes, the Company will restate its financial results for the years ended December 31, 2003 and 2002, as such will be included in its Annual Report on Form 10K for the year ended December 31, 2004. These changes have resulted in a delay of several days in the completion of the review of the Company's financial statements.
